

News from the Classroom

Math + Science

Math: This week we will, again, be pulling out the geoboards to recognize the difference between a rectangle and a square. We will also be working on ordinal numbers up to "sixth". Have you noticed on the math assignments that we have been drawing pictures for math stories? Soon we will be writing number sentences with real numbers!

Science: We will be having our first ever Science test this Thursday! It will be about identifying features of mammals and what living things need to survive! I will send home a "study guide" on Tuesday.

Show and Tell

This week, since we are talking about sleep, I would like to have children bring in their favorite thing to sleep with. It could be a stuffy, a pillow, their favorite pj's, etc.

I can't wait to see those of you that can make it to bring your parent to school day this Friday!

Week 6

Language Focus

Wholy Guacamole! First grade wrote and illustrated their first successful narrative! I'm hoping your child will read them to you on Friday.

We will be starting a new module in language. We will read the anchor text, "Time to Sleep". This is a non-fiction book! First grade will compare and contrast and search out details from the text to support their answers to my questions.

Spelling words: (Short o middle sound) mop, top, dot, got, lot, rot, pop, rod, cot, bop
